EYE CARE

Refraction Service and Fee

A refraction is an essential part of the eye exam which is necessary to determine the performance of the visual system, to determine the need for glasses and contact lenses and in some cases to evaluate a patient for surgery. Unfortunately, some insurance plans (including Medicare) DO NOT cover the cost of the refraction. In these cases, the patient will be responsible for the refraction charge of $35 at the time of service in addition to any copayment your insurance plan may require.

Prescription Re-Checks

Glasses: If you are having a problem with your new glasses, you have 90 days from the date of your exam to have a re-check at no charge. Beyond 90 days, you will be subject to another refraction charge ($30) to have it re-checked. In addition, due to the high frequency of errors on glasses made from Costco or online retailers, prescription checks on these glasses will also be subject to the $30 re-check fee, regardless of your last exam date.

Contact Lenses: If you are having a problem with the vision or comfort in your contacts, you have 60 days from the date of your contact lens exam to have your contact lenses re-checked and adjusted. Beyond 60 days, you will be subject to a contact lens re-fit charge to have it re-checked.
